Police arrest 32 in drug trafficking roundup

By JEFF MOORE and KRISTIN SHERRARD

The News-Democrat

Many local residents awoke to pounding on their door Wednesday, Feb. 8 as officers from three law enforcement agencies set out before the break of dawn to roundup Carroll County residents indicted for selling drugs to undercover offi-

Carroll County Sheriff's Department, Carrollton Police Department and Kentucky State Police joined forces, with 25 officers teaming up to serve warrants on 36 people who were indicted by a grand jury Monday. As of Tuesday morning, 32 of the 36 had been arrested.

Police are still looking for Daniel L. Powers, 25, address unknown; Daniel W. Collins, 23, Worthville; Sam Melton, 33, Worthville; and Ronald Vittitoe, 28, Carrollton.

A team headed up by Sheriff Jamie Kinman and Deputy J.T. Shaw made three arrests and confiscated two vehicles at their first stop at Carrollton Housing Authority apartments located on Brock Drive, off Gillock Avenue.

They started their day with a knock on the door at the residence of Anthony Humphrey at 1171 Brock Dr. As officers could be seen inside searching the home, a flatbed truck showed up from M&M towing to load up the family's Lincoln sitting out front.

Officers explained that any vehicle allegedly used in connection with the sale of the drugs would be confiscated. Shaw told the driver from M&M that he may be picking up five or six vehicles during the drug sweep.

Once Hopkins was arrested, the team moved next door to 1169 Brock Dr., where they arrested Amanda J. Dietz. They also could be seen inside with flashlights searching through the home. Exiting this home, Kinman asked city police for an evidence bag for a bottle of pills officers found inside the home. A few minutes later, they moved on to 1123 Brock Dr. where they arrested Carolina J. Chandler and again performed a search of premises. Another vehicle was confiscated at this home, with Gene and Sons bringing their flatbed to haul away

By the time the team had moved to the RiverHill apartments to make a pair of arrests there, daylight had arrived. They entered and searched apartment B-2 and arrested Bobby Parker and Amy Ellis.

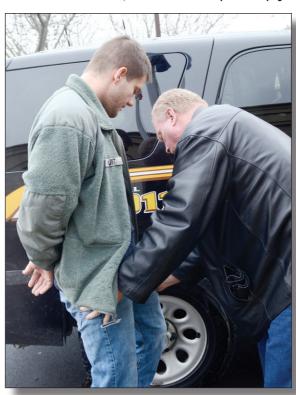

Kinman's team repeated its process around the city of Carrollton and then at Green Acres Trailer Park on Hwy. 36, netting nine arrests in just five hours.

Kinman said the roundup resulted in 30 of the arrests. Those charged were brought back to the National Guard Armory in Carrollton for processing, before being moved by Jailer Mike Humphrey and his deputies to the Carroll County Detention Center.

The team of Chief Deputy Clay Cable, Officer Tony Stigers and Troopers Chad Johnson and Mickey Gonterman had a different experience with their assigned list.

After hitting a dead-end on their first attempt, the team arrested Roger Kinman and Kim Beckham at about 7:30 a.m. at Kinman Trailer

County may prohibit the sale of synthetic marijuana

By KRISTIN SHERRARD

The News-Democrat

Carroll County Judge-Executive Harold "Shorty" Tomlinson provided the magistrates with information on prohibiting the sale of synthetic marijuana at Carroll County Fiscal Court's meeting Friday, Feb. 10. There is not a state law prohibiting the substances, however, House Bill 198 is currently waiting to be addressed by the 2012 Kentucky Legislative Session.

Former County Attorney Jim Monk, who was filling in for current County Attorney Nick Marsh while he was in another meeting, said other counties in the state have either passed or considered passing ordinances prohibiting the sale of synthetic marijuana until the state passes a law against it. He said there is a shop in Madison, Ind., that appears to be selling the product as potpourri.

Tomlinson said he talked to Sheriff Jamie Kinman, who said the drugs are not currently being sold in the county, but that does not mean people cannot travel across the county or state line and buy them.

According to law enforcement, there has not been a case involving these drugs locally, Monk

City eyes flood plain study

The News-Democrat

The city of Carrollton is exploring a plan to assist about 68 property owners in removing the flood plain designation from their prop-

At Monday night's Carrollton City Council meeting, Carrollton Utilities' Terry Roach presented a $16,750 proposal from Centerfield Engineering Inc. of Crestwood to revise Federal Emergency Management Agency maps that place a corridor from south of Mason Street to Grobmeyer Avenue near Hwy. 227 in the flood

Roach told council the flood plain designation was added to this part of the city during a July 2007 FEMA revision of maps. "This 'finger' showed up on the flood plain maps," he said, referring to the long, narrow shape of the affected area. It extends from Schuerman St. at the alley just off Hwy. 277, back through the property being developed as Bishop's Trace, then crosses 11th Street and narrows as it comes down across Winslow St. to an area between Tilley Drive and Harley Drive, ending at Mason

Being located in the flood plain has created financing problems and the loan process for these residents, Roach said. Lenders can require that they have flood insur-

The developers of the Bishop's

Trace project went through the process with FEMA to remove the flood plain designation from the building sites, just off Schuerman Street. Roach said that only the footprint of the homes are out of the flood plain there.

Based on how the water flows out of this area, Roach said Carrollton Utilities officials do not believe this area is in the flood plain.

The Centerfield Engineering proposal includes the design and analysis of the area needed to determine if any areas are actually in the flood plain, he said. "It's quite a bit of work," Roach said.

Centerfield's president William F. Berry said he assisted the city of Park. They also arrested Michelle Maddox about an hour later at Riverside Apartments. Like the sheriff's group, Clay's team also confiscated a vehicle on Corda Lane at the home of Michael Bolton. The vehicle was in his father's name, but police believe Bolton was driving the vehicle.

In addition to three arrests, two others opted to turn themselves in once they learned police were looking for them.

GOING UNDERCOVER

The sheriff's office, city and state police had been working with undercover informants in preparation for Wednesday's roundup for nearly seven months, Kinman said.

To make their case for the indictments, the sheriff said those arrested allegedly purchased heroin, oxycotin, oxycodone or hydrocodone at least twice from undercover informants during the sting.

Kinman praised the work of his deputies, city police and the state police for their work making these arrests possible.

"Our focus has been to clean up the streets of Carroll County and get rid of these drug traffickers and people who are bringing these drugs into Carroll County," Kinman

State police said each suspect arrested was charged with trafficking in a Controlled Substance I or Trafficking in a Controlled Substance II.

The undercover investigation by the sheriff's office included the purchase of about 150 pills and nine-tenths of a gram of heroin. The hydrocodone, oxycodone and oxycontin pills are valued at $1,400. The heroin was valued at $300.

Kinman said drugs are the burglaries within the county.

Carroll County Commonwealth Attorney James Crawford said the community is facing a "serious problem" with the addiction to these opiate-based drugs. He added that they are "highly addictive and way too easy to Crawford said there are several ways people get their hands on these drugs. Some get prescriptions from clinics. Others get them from parents who use their Medicaid or Medicare card.

One full-month prescription can be sold for up to $1,200. The street price in Carrollton for opiates is running about $1 for every 1.5 milligrams of the drug, he said.

Through the cases he has handled, Crawford said he has seen people who are veterans and many who have never been in trouble provide their medications to family members to be sold for additional

"I have no idea how we are going to stop this," Crawford said.

LAW ENFORCEMENT CHALLENGES

Crawford said another issue he faces is how easy the system goes on those who are arrested and convicted. As of Tuesday afternoon, 19 of the 32 arrested had already been released on bond. The majority of those are out on $10,000 or $20,000 surety bonds. The following are the conditions of a surety bond: No new arrest violations; No drug or alcohol; Report to pre-trial; Random drug testing; and Maintain or obtain employment. They are also under house arrest unless they are with the person who signed the surety bond or at their place of employment. Crawford is also frustrated by last year's state law change that let those convicted of possession free on parole the first

root of numerous thefts and two times they are caught with illegal drugs

But he said Carroll County is not alone in facing this problem. He said it runs through communities across the state. He said there is one pain clinic in a nearby county where anyone with $300 can walk in and get a prescription for arthritis pain after having an x-ray or MRI and walk out with opiates valued at $3,000 to $4,000 on the street.

He said a bill now before the state's General Assembly needs to be passed to change how readily available these drugs are to state residents.

KinmansharesinCrawford's frustrations with the current system. "It all comes back to this new law," he said in an interview Tuesday. "My main thing is I just want the people to know we put a lot of time and effort in this, and we're going to continue to put time and effort in this, but it really bothers you. As law enforcement officers, we know going in this is our job and what we signed up to do and what we love to do. We put seven months into this. All these people have gotten back out of jail due to these new laws.'

Kinman noted that the public has helped fight the drug problem by providing information through the anonymous tips portion of the sheriff's office website, www.carrollcountykysheriff.com. buys, Kinman said, were with the help of anonymous tips and confidential informants. "The message to the drug dealers and users is that we are not done," Kinman said. "It will not be safe for drug dealers and users to be in Carroll County and continue what they are doing." Other agencies participating in the roundup were Probation/Parole, Carroll County Detention Center and KSP Commercial Vehicle Enforcement.

Cummings offered anti-drug message for local community

Champions for a Drug Free Carroll County ast week I was privileged to attend the Community Anti-Drug Coalitions of America Leadership Forum in National Harbor, Md., a suburb of Washington D.C. The conference was a culmination of the three week National Coalition Academy that we attended in 2011 in Meridian, Miss.

During the conference there were many sessions, speakers and even dignitaries yet one stood out in my mind more than any. Maryland Rep. Elijah Cummings spoke at the luncheon Thursday afternoon. The story that he shared is one that you can draw great insight from.

In 2011, on the campus in which his nephew was attending college, someone broke into the apartment and murdered Christopher Cummings. To this day, no one has been caught or confessed to the horrible incident leaving the family with no answers. The night before the funeral, Christopher's father asked his brother, the congressman, to deliver the eulogy.

As he sat there at his computer looking for the words to say for the service nothing came to him. The congressman decided to look at his nephew's Facebook page to try and get something. On the left hand side, Christopher Cummings had listed the three most influential people in his life. Number one was the president and number three was some rapper. However, number two was listed as "my uncle Elijah." By now the tears were flowing and the congressman saw what Christopher described as his motto for life. The following phrase is what the congressman spoke to the leadership conference about on Thursday: "Speak your mind, Pour out your heart, Love

Speak your mind. We all have a story to tell and only you can tell yours. You have a circle of influence in your life, a group of people that only you can reach. We cannot be afraid to speak, because if we are then the opponents have won. The congressman shared a story of a family in Baltimore, Md., that spoke out against the drugs in their neighborhood. Because they spoke out a man threw a bomb into their home killing five children and two adults. Some would say that is what they get for speaking their mind, but today where there home was is not an education center teaching drug and alcohol rehabilitation classes. They spoke their mind despite opposition and today that neighborhood is a better place.

Pour out your heart, whatever the cause that you are working toward. Give everything inside of you. When you go home at the end of the day, go knowing that you gave all of yourself and did not hold anything back. The satisfaction of knowing that you poured yourself out will be greater than the feeling of holding back. We will only see great outcomes, when we pour out everything for the cause.

The congressman made reference to what he calls the PPPs. Personal Pity Parties are not going to make any problem or situation better but rather worse. Our community did not become drug infested by people complaining, but instead they got up and did something. On the same note we will not defeat the drug problem by talking but by everyone pulling together, pouring themselves into our community and making the drug problem realize that they are the minority, not the majority.

Desnel Tomlinson Locke e-mailed us to say the Feb. 1 photo was of his father, Cecil Tomlinson. He said that Tomlinson was killed in a gun accident in 1973. His father was a brother to Shorty Tomlinson's dad, Harold Tomlinson, along with seven other brothers and three sisters. Out of all of those siblings there are two living, he said. David Tomlinson also called to identify the Feb. 1 photo. He believes one of the men in the photo is his brother, Herbert "Turk" Thomlinson, he says the photo was taken during the Korean War.

Outpouring provides food for animals

Editor:

A few months ago I had the pleasure of waiting on some of the ladies that work for Carroll County Animal Support. I enjoyed talking to them about all the hard work they were doing to help the animals. Their work included helping with the rescue of the animals from Henry

I decided to start collecting donations for the dogs that were rescued. Immediately I received an outpouring of donations from the employees of Down On Main Street and also some of my guests who came in for dinner.

My goal was to get a few supplies, but after speaking briefly with Tammy Crawford. She informed me they needed cans of Pedigree dog food.

So, thanks to all of you who made a monetary donation, we gave them over 60 cans of food. I would like to personally thank Rhonda, Junie, Rylee, Dewayne, Loretto, Devin, Lauren, James, Tiffany, Christie, Karla, Troy and Jan, Jayme, Paul, Jimmy and Bob, Kevin, Daniel, Donna and Lynn, and Wendy and Colby for your generosity and your donations. Your generous donations exceeded my expectations and they went to a cause that is very close to my heart.

I also want to thank Tammy, Sherry, Phyllis, Rhonda, Cheri and Molly and all the rest of you who give so much of your time and energy to these abused and neglected animals.

Carroll County Lady Panthers played excellent defense in the first half against Collins High School, down just seven at halftime. But the Lady Titans (20-9) came out of halftime with an offensive furry and outscored the home team 23-5 in the third quarter, ultimately winning the game

It was Senior Night Monday for Brittany Arvin, Hannah Devine, Andie Hardesty, Nikki Hill and Jayla Tomlinson. The five seniors were introduced before the game with their family, as well as during the starting lineup announcement. Arvin, Hardesty, Hill and Tomlinson started the game with sophomore Makena Kindoll. Devine, who has been out almost the entire season with an injury, dressed and was introduced, but did not play.

The Lady Titans jumped out to an early 12-2 lead in the first quarter. But the Lady Panthers (6-19) did not give up.

Sophomores Kayla Williamson and Kelsey Ogden hit back-to-back 3pointers to open the second quarter and cut the lead to six, 14-8. Collins' lead jumped back out to 11 points with 1:10 to go. But Kindoll banked in a short jumper and Hill hit a layup with 30 seconds remaining to give Carroll some momentum heading in to the half, down 21-14.

Unfortunately, Collins' scoring outburst in the third quarter was too much to overcome. "The thing that hurt us so much was the transition baskets they got and points off turnovers," head coach Randy Mefford said. "So many times, our team ends up getting panicky with the ball, and I know two or three times we passed it without even looking to see where we passed it to. ... (Collins is) as good defensively as we've played this year."

Lady Titan Aaliyah Wells scored 30 points, many of which came off of steals and layups in transition. Mefford said Collins logged 18 steals in the game, and said Wells probably had 10 of those. "She's ranked third or fourth best player in the region and she's a junior," he said. "She will no doubt be the best player in the region next year."

The Lady Panthers will graduate five seniors this year, all of which played an integral part in this year's

"Brittany Arvin, the girl makes things happen on the court," Mefford said. "She's as hard-nosed as we've got ... I love her work ethic."

"Nikki Hill has been our leader out there all year," Mefford said, noting that he moved the guard/forward from her position last season as a post player to a guard this season, many times handling the ball up the court. "She does the best she can out there and just a great leader for us."

"Andie Hardesty, she's one who has been a really, really good teammate to everybody," the head coach said. Mefford has encouraged her all season to be more aggressive, and he said last Friday's game against Williamstown "was the most aggressive I've ever seen her play. If she makes a mistake and you get one going to the basket, you're not going to make that layup. She's going to get a hard foul on you, so she's gotten better." "Jayla, she's just a real great teammate also ... She's helped us mostly in practice and just having somebody on that second group that can kind of help the younger ones. She does some cheerleading also, but she's been a great teammate as well."

Hannah Devine played just one partial game in her senior season due to an ACL injury, but Carroll County is not the last time she will be playing ball. Mefford said her soon-to-be college coach, Jeff Hans from Thomas

More College, came to the game Monday to watch Devine's teammates play and be supportive. Mefford said Devine has been cleared and her ACL is completely healed. She will continue to rehab her knee and prepare for college. "I told her coach up there, I'd definitely be up there some next year to watch her play at the college level," he said.

Upcoming games

Carroll's varsity teams will play a doubleheader against Walton-Verona Friday, with the boys playing at 6 p.m. and the girls following at 7:30 p.m. The boys played South Oldham Tuesday night in their senior night matchup.

The 31st District tournament will be played at Owen County this year. The fourth-seeded Carroll boys will play fifth-seeded Eminence at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 20. The winner will meet first-seeded Owen County at 6 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 23. The boys championship is at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 25.

The third-seeded Carroll girls will play second-seeded Gallatin County at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 22. The winner will play in the championship game on Friday, Feb. 24 at 7 p.m. Admission to the tournament is $6 per person.

Mayor of Carrollton

Dear Carrollton Community Citizens

This is your personal invitation to attend a Community Listening Session to be held at the Carroll County Middle School cafeteria on February 16th from 7:00 p.m. - 8:30 p.m. We will be discussing recent riverfront developments and the future direction of downtown Carrollton. We will be updating you on the progress that has been made thus far and seeking your input on where our energies should be focused in the future.

More importantly I want to hear your thoughts, suggestions, ideas and concerns about the future of our community. Like me, I know that you are committed to the improvement of our community.

Your attendance at this event and your thoughts about our city are important to me. I urge you to become involved in our effort to insure that Carrollton prepares for the future and constantly improves the quality of life for you and for all of our citizens.

Having a town meeting is serious business, but that doesn't mean that we can't have an enjoyable time being with one another and discussing the future of our city. The meeting will last approximately 1 1/2 hours. That's a small amount of time to invest when you consider the tremendous opportunity that we have. Our city has a bright future because of people like you, and I trust I can count on you to take part in this important step for our future.

Sincerely,

Gene McMurry, Mayor

Mayor Gene McMurry said the city would pick up the cost of the engineering work. He said he has been approached by at least five property owners who have run into problems because of the flood plain designation.

Councilman Mike Gordon asked Roach if he believes the flood plain mapping was an error on FEMA's part. Roach said he believes it was, because this area was never in the flood plain before.

City Attorney Nick Marsh said he will review the proposal to see if the city can legally conduct this study with public money since it only will "benefit this set of property owners."

Council members discussed if local residents could take on FEMA themselves to change the designation. But McMurry said that would about be impossible because it would end up costing them about as much as the city would play for its study.

Marsh said he will research the issue and even seek an attorney general's opinion, if necessary.

Community listening session Thursday

The city of Carrollton will hold a community listening session at Carroll County Middle School cafeteria at 7 p.m. Feb. 16 to provide information about what has occurred on several projects in downtown and along the waterfront, as well as to receive residents' comments, thoughts, ideas and concerns.

Topics will include the recent recreational trails grant, Point Park developments and what they mean for the citizens of Carrollton. The riverfront and downtown area of Carrollton is undertaking a transformative experience as construction on a few projects is underway. These projects will impact the city's infrastructure, quality of life and revenues.

"The city is committed to making our community more viable and economically sound," Mayor Gene McMurry said. "We need everyone to get involved, tell us what they think and help us make the right choices for our citizens."

Listening session organizers want citizens to answer three questions:

• For downtown Carrollton to be successful we must (fill in the blank).

 What is the most important thing that needs to be done right now to improve downtown Carrollton?

• What is the most important thing that should be done in the long term to improve downtown Carrollton?

A press release from the city states the meeting is all about planning the city's future. All citizens are encouraged to come and participate in order for the community to be successful.

Washington cake recipe offers presidential taste

he Caby M. Froman Club has been studying the religion of our forefathers since this past July. Our club always has such good programs and forces us to continue learning, even as we get older.

This particular program is

Lonnie's Lagniappe

Lonnie Sundermeyer part of our religious study. One of our meetings was held at the home of Sandra Thomas, where we had a pitchin meal. My idea was to have everyone bring a favorite dish of one of our forefathers. That turned out to be a little extensive since the recipes I found (in my cookbook on recipes of the presidents), had the recipes as originally written. We prepared some of the things that were their favorites, and ours as well. It was a wonderful meal and for this column, since we will be celebrating President's Day on Feb. 22. I decided to explore the favorite foods of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. It has been a very wonderful and interesting journey.

Both Washington and Lincoln were simple men who enjoyed simple meals. Washington, since his tastes were simple, preferred a "glass of wine and a bit of mutton" when entertaining his guests. Lincoln loved fresh fruit, particularly apples, therefore his favorite meal was fresh fruit, nuts, cheese and crackers, if he remembered to eat at all.

At Washington's presidential dinners, there was usually a variety of roast beef, veal, ducks, fowls, hams, puddings, jellies, oranges, apples, nuts, almonds, figs, raisins and a variety of wines and punch. Plus, you may have heard of Washington cakes, which have been popular, particularly on the east coast for hundreds of years. Generally, it is a dense, creamy fruit cake with white icing. However, there is one that was sold in bakeries in Philadelphia in the 1950s-1960s, called Philadelphia-

The Washington cake is said to have been a favorite of the nation's first leader, George style Washington cake. It was described as a dark spice cake (similar to gingerbread, but often with chocolate) with chocolate icing. So far, none of those recipes have been found.

Lincoln loved oysters of all kinds and chicken fricassee, so the chicken is on my menu for this Sunday's meal.

After looking at many similar recipes, I have come up with my version of:

Washington Cake

34 cup butter, room temperature 1 cup sugar

3 eggs

1/4 cup wine (your choice of type) 3 cups sifted flour

1 tsp. baking soda 2 tsp. nutmeg

1½ tsp. cinnamon

1 cup heavy cream

Grease and flour (or use baking spray) two 8-inch round cake pans. Set oven tem-

Cream the butter and sugar together until light and fluffy.

Beat the eggs; add wine to eggs. Mix together with sugar and butter mixture. Sift together flour, baking soda and spices. Beginning with flour, alternate flour mixture and cream, adding to butter/egg mixture and blending well after each addition, ending with flour mixture.

Pour batter into the two cake pans and bake at 350 degrees for about 45 minutes, depending on your oven. You may also bake this in a tube pan for about 70 minutes. Cool completely before frosting.

Frost with your favorite icing or use my Favorite Chocolate Frosting

2/3 cup butter, softened 5¾ cup sifted powdered sugar 11/3 cups cocoa 1 cup plus 2 tbsp. milk 1 tsp. vanilla

Beat 2/3 cup butter at medium speed until creamy. Combine powdered sugar and 1 1/3 cups cocoa; add to butter alternately with 1 cup plus 2 tbsp. milk, beginning and ending with powdered sugar mixture. Beat until spreading consistency. Stir in 1 tsp. vanilla. Spread frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake.

Enjoy!

Movie offers insight in to Bible's teaching for dads

"Every morning, as a dad, I have the ability to change or remain the same. The night before, I have the opportunity to reflect on my previous moments as a father- the good, the bad, the ugly. If I am blessed enough to have another day and awake from my slumber- I have the ability and potential to change and improve as a dad. I don't have to remain the same, I don't have to keep repeating the same mistakes, I don't have to settle for just as fathers- we can still finish well." That's a summary of

In God's House

Jay Montgomery being good or average nor should my family settle for this. Even though we may have not started well what I walked away with Friday night after viewing the movie "Courageous." "Courageous" reminded me of what I already knew — fatherhood requires intentionality and courage: the courage to make difficult decisions, the courage to be consistent, the courage to show up at the right places, the courage to protect and model your family values, the courage to make a difference as a dad, the courage to say I'm sorry and correct past mistakes, the courage to love your wife and family through any circumstance, the courage to keep a promise, the courage to be present ... the courage to do the things that dads should be doing.

The movie itself is much more than simply about being a good dad. There are many relational connecting points for the audience: marriage, anger and forgiveness, dealing with grief, second chances, honoring your parents, work ethic and provision, true friendship, purpose in life, just to mention a few. Had I ever worked for Siskel and Ebert, I would have given this movie "two thumbs up with a box of tissues."

To follow up on the movie, a group of dads met Saturday morning for coffee, and discussed the book of Joshua from the Bible. Many times in the book of Joshua, God reminds him to be "strong and courageous" as a leader of people and to stick to the game plan that He has provided. God reminds Joshua in Joshua 1:7-9, "Above all, be strong and very courageous to carefully observe the whole instruction My servant Moses commanded you. Do not turn from it to the right or the left, so that you will have success wherever you go. This book of instruction must not depart from your mouth; you are to recite it day and night so that you may carefully observe everything written in it. For then you will prosper and succeed in whatever you do. Haven't I commanded you: be strong and courageous? Do not be afraid or discouraged, for the Lord your God is with you wherever you Not only does God command Joshua to stick to the leadership plan that He provides in His word, but fathers can also allow these scriptures to guide us and direct us into becoming better fathers. We, too, have been entrusted with leadership and the ability to influence. The role of being a father is not to be taken lightly.

I am very grateful for this 'cinematic' reminder on the big screen to pay attention to my responsibilities, my family, and how God desires to use me in those roles. As we open ourselves up to the influence of God and His Word, may our upcoming days and weeks as fathers be courageous and life

He mentioned the Richwood Plantation in Trimble County being in the vicinity, but that it was not in the area of the bridge. Former County Attorney

Jim Monk said he remembers Indian mounds being nearby, but he did not know if it was in the area of the Tomlinson said if the bridge truly is in an historical area, the project would be pushed back because it would trigger other federal regulations on streams the county would need to address before progressing. According to an Oct. 19 News-Democrat article, the project will mean the road there will be closed for 60 days when work begins.

If the project is delayed, it may not be complete by the beginning of the 2012-13 school year. He said he asked Carroll County Schools Superintendent Lisa James to calculate an estimate on the number of students that would be affected by the road

In a Jan. 4 article naming his goals for the county this year, Tomlinson said, "We really do need to try to get that bridge built. Twenty years or longer we've been trying to get something done in that area because there's been fatalities there, so that's another sizable project."

He said he will invite Hans to the next fiscal court meeting to talk about the bridge and other secondary roads. The next fiscal court meeting has been moved from it's regularly scheduled day to Wednesday, Feb. 29 at 8 a.m. at the old county courthouse.

Cartmell Student Council is leading a drive during the month of February to help provide supplies for Carroll County

"We are trying to live out our mission, 'To serve and lead with pride and dedication'," said student council sponsor Jonica Ray, the instructional coach at Cartmell.

The students at Cartmell Elementary School are bringing in a variety of items, including dog and cat food (dry or canned), kitty litter, dog shampoo, dish soap, paper towels, detergent, bleach, all-purpose cleaning supplies and used pet carriers or crates. The students are also looking for related pet items, such as dog and cat grooming brushes, food and water bowls, puppy pads, dog and cat treats, and cat and dog toys.

"I think it is wonderful," Tammie Crawford, executive director of Carroll

County Animal Support, said. "It will help out tremendously."

Crawford said that the organization tries to find homes for unwanted cats and dogs and that the donations will help to temporarily house the animals until they can be adopted.

Ray said that student council offers third, fourth and fifth grade students an opportunity to actively participate in school-wide initiatives, lend their hands to community causes and be a role model for their peers. Each classroom elects two representatives, one boy and one girl.

Cartmell Principal Doug Oak said that student council introduces students to democracy and representative government. He pointed out that students are doing the animal support project themselves and that they are learning to become leaders through various service projects they perform throughout the year.

"We passed out fliers and told everyone they should bring in pet supplies," Lauren Perkinson, who represents Emily Brown's fourth grade class along with Cole Supplee, said. At the end of the first week, Brown's class had the highest total of 46 Third graders

Bailey Leap and Aiden Hollingsworth in Judy Kemper's third grade class said that, as class representatives, they try to help out other students and the

"We help people by reminding them to do their homework, and I help Ms.

Kemper unstack chairs in the morning," Leap said.

"I stay in the gym in the morning and get everyone quiet and keep the line straight," Hollingsworth, who said he hopes their class will collect the most items in the animal shelter, added. "I'm going to bring in a lot of stuff.' Ray said that, in addition to the animal support project, she has asked student council members to ask their classmates for ideas of how to enhance their "Panther Parties." which the school offers about every six weeks to celebrate good grades, attendance and citizenship. She has also asked them to gather ideas on what kind of equipment the students would like to add to the playground.

After one week of the drive, Ray's office wall is lined up with 165 items - bags and cans of pet food, rolls of paper towels, a bottle of bleach, and a box of chew toys. "The students have really responded," Ray said. "By the end of February, I think my office is going to be pretty crowded." Ray said donations from the general public can be dropped off at Cartmell Elementary or given to a Cartmell student. For information about Carroll County Animal Support or to make financial contributions, contact Crawford at (502) 732-6040 or visit the organization's website at www.carrollcountyanimalsupport.webs.com.

non-profit animal rescue Students must be 'proficient' in reading, math by 2012-14

By SHARON GRAVES The News-Democrat

Changes in Kentucky's student testing procedures mean that Carroll County students will be required to be 100 percent "proficient" in reading and math by the end of the 2013-14 school

That's the message Superintendent Lisa James delivered to members of the Carroll County Board of Education Thursday, Kentucky and nine other states were granted waivers last week by President Barak Obama from the often-criticized stringent standards of the No Child Left Behind bill in exchange for assurances those states would work to ensure their students were college and career ready. States receiving the waivers also will no longer be threatened with sanctions for those schools deemed to be failing or not making "adequate" progress, according to a press release issued by the Obama administration.

Secretary of Education Arne Duncan said states receiving the waivers had agreed to adopt standards for college and career readiness; implement new accountability systems with more flexibility in assessing student achievement; and develop evaluation and support systems based on measures to improve teacher effectiveness.

New Jersey, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Colorado, Indiana, Minnesota and Oklahoma are the other nine states receiving the first of its kind waivers, with 28 states to follow soon, according to the press release.

According to Kentucky Department of Education website, the steps to implementing NCLB have been unclear and inflexible, requiring 100 percent of students to rank as proficient in math and reading. KDE states that it has already set in motion many of the requirements laid down by NCLB, but the end result still will not be 100 percent proficient students by

Based on the most recent NCLB report, Carroll County met three of 10 goals set for it. Under the federal No Child Left Behind Act a school/district must make 100 percent of its target goals in order to qualify as having made Adequate Yearly Progress. In the 2010-11 year report, Carroll County had no areas where students ranked higher than 70 percent reaching the proficiency mark with several far below that.

The bipartisan bill passed in 2002 had wide support throughout congress, but has been up for renewal since 2007, without success.

Assistant Superintendant Bill Hogan reported to the board on the District Improvement Plan in two critical areas for students. Hogan explained that in the district's "Response to Intervention" program, 80-85 percent will be proficient in reading. He further explained there is another 10-15 percent who will need additional support to reach the proficiency level. Finally, there are about 5 percent of students who will need much more intensive help to reach the proficiency level. also explained that in the "Behavior Intervention" area, the numbers are exactly the same.

Georgetown names four to dean's list

Four Carroll County students have been named to the Dean's List at Georgetown College, Georgetown, for the 2011 fall semester.

Students named to the The board voted to revise Dean's List are: Cody Arthur only having one meeting of Duke and Carrie Boles; Kyndal Christerson Curry of Carrollton, daughter of Doug and Paula Curry; William Carroll Yager of Carrollton, son of Carroll and Rita Yager, of Carrollton; and Jensen Wainscott of Worthville, daughter of David and Felechia Wainscott. The Dean's List honors undergraduate students who completed the semester with at least 12 credit hours and a 3.7 GPA, according to Dr. Rosemary Allen, provost/academic dean.

Stethen named to fall dean's scholar at WKU

Angela Stethen was named a Dean's Scholar at Western Kentucky University for her outstanding academic performance for the Fall 2011 semester. This honor is given to those students who earn an academic standing ranging from 3.4 to 3.79. Angela, a 2008 Trimble County graduate, is a psychology major in her senior year at WKU. She is the daughter of Michael and Donna Stethen of Bedford and the granddaughter of Elizabeth Middleton Claymont Del. and James and Mary Stethen of Bedford.

Special guests to appear at Rotary Ball

Carrollton Rotary Club, with help from local businessman Herb Kinman, has lined up two country music stars as special guests for Saturday night's Rotary Ball.

Performers T.G. Sheppard and Kelly Lang, who are husband and wife, will serve as auctioneers during the event at General Butler State Resort Park Conference Center, project chairman Nick Marsh said Monday.

Another Kentuckiana television personality will also take part in the event. WAVE3 television news anchor Janell McDonald will handle emcee duties during the ball, Marsh noted.

He said those attending will have the chance to meet and visit with Sheppard, Lang and McDonald.

Tickets are still available for the ball, which is raising funds for the purchase of digital mammography equipment at Carroll County Memorial Hospital.

Credit card purchases may be made at the Carroll County Chamber of Commerce. Other locations include the gift shop or the administration office at Carroll County Memorial Hospital; US Bank; United Citizens Bank; First Producers will get classroom and hands-on experience. Some topics to be covered are AI techniques, the reproductive tract and synchronization methods. In addition, each participant will receive the AI manual.

The cost of the course is $325, and space size for Carroll County producers is very limited. Because this school is a districtwide opportunity, only two producers can come from each county.

If you are interested, please contact the Pendleton County Agriculture Agent, Michael Mann, at (859) 654-3395 to register as soon as possible. The RSVP date is today, Feb. 15, and a $100 deposit fee will be due. For the registration information, please contact the Carroll County Extension Office at (502) 732-7030.

surrounding area and give them more access to fresh fruits and vegetables.

The page provides links to all the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture's programs and initiatives related to local foods, as well state and national resources. As part of the page, UK Cooperative Extension Service agents will have the opportunity to develop county web pages that list their local producers and products. Franklin and Woodford counties will have the first county-specific web pages developed. The web page will give producers a chance to develop partnerships with each other and could help boost the state's farm to school program. Farm to school strives to get fresh, locally grown fruits and vegetables on the menus in local school

Healthy weight group

Tonight and every third Wednesday of the month the Healthy Weight Group meets from 5-6:30 p.m. at the Extension office. The purpose of the group is to work toward keeping off weight lost as a result of techniques learned in "Weight the Reality Series" or through other weight loss efforts. At sessions participants support each other as they learn more about healthy living and eating habits. Participants are invited to share their most successful (and healthy) ways working for them to maintain a healthy weight. Becky Wilson, RN, Three Rivers District Health Department and I guide a discussion that provides a short program on a topic of concern and teach a healthy recipe with tasting and a bit of exercise. The topic for tonight is "Sodium – What's in It for Me?" We invite all interested to attend. Call the Extension office to sign up.

Beginning quilting

Quilting professional Kay Wilson of Ghent is working with the Carroll County Extension Service to offer a series of beginning quilting classes for adults and youth over 12 years of age. Classes will be held from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on the first Saturday of the month starting Saturday, March 3. Wilson is offering these through a special program called "Quilts for Kids" in which anyone interested in learning to quilt learns by making quilts for less fortunate children in Kentucky.

There is no cost for the classes as all fabrics are donated. Several local quilters have also volunteered to help teach the classes.

"The reward is that you learn to quilt by giving something to children in need," Wilson said. "Quilts for Kids" has a chapter in Winchester, under which Carroll and other area counties will work until we establish a Northern Kentucky Area Chapter

Please call the Carroll County Extension office at (502) 732-7030 by Friday, Feb. 24 to sign up for the series of classes

International luncheon

The Carroll County Extension Homemakers holds its annual International Luncheon Tuesday, Feb. 28 at the Carroll County Extension office. This year's theme is "A Visit to Brazil." The guest speaker is Francisco Leité, a Carroll County resident who is originally from Brazil.

Members are asked to bring a dish to pass. Table service and beverage will be provided. Recipes for some Brazilian dishes are available at the Extension office. Co-chairs Martha Moorman and Patty Kost encourage members to attend and invite guests.

> Both Greg Elrod and Puckett were arrested in the drug round-up Wednesday, Feb. 8, but Elrod was still being housed at Carroll County Detention Center, the deputy said.

The police interviewed Puckett and obtained information on the possible contents of the package. They went to the jail to interview Greg Elrod, and as they were pulling in, they saw his parents also coming in to visit their son, Shaw said. Shaw said they were inter-several occasions, they had from his parents, George F. mailed their son Ultram and Elrod, 73, and Margaret Sue hydrocodone because he was Elrod, 71, Shaw said. out of work and needed food and firewood. Shaw said he asked them for their consent to open the package, which they provided.

Police also interviewed Greg Elrod, who admitted to the same and also gave consent to open the package. The deputy said the package contained what George Elrod had described: a tan glove with a pill bottle inside of hydrocodone. All three were cited for trafficking a controlled substance second degree and have a court date on Feb. 22.
